ARABS FIRE ON FUNERAL

British Officers Wounded

RECRUITS WANTED

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Jerusalem, July 2.
Several British officers were wounded when Arabs ambushed the funeral procession at the graveside of a British soldier killed recently by insurgents.

The Arabs have begun a regular recruiting campaign and are giving families the alternatives of joining their ranks as fighters or giving money for the purchase of arms.

The residence of the British High Commissioner, Sir Arthur Wau-chope, is being heavily guarded and a cordon of troops has surrounded the district.

Arab merchants are evidently no longer very keen on carrying their strike through and it is asserted that several members of the Arab strike committee are already advocating its termination since their funds are beginning to become scarce.

Hector Cat About Town
Notorious Gossip

The town Shylock lost his purse with quite a sum of money. It was found by an honest man, who advertised for the loser. In time, the advertisement was answered, and the finder, being satisfied that it belonged to the usurer, cheerfully returned it to him.

The contents of the purse were counted several times, to the discomfort of the finder. "Isn't it all there?" he asked.

"Yes, but you should remember—you had it over a month."

The foreman of an electrical repair shop was interviewing a bright boy who was applying for a position.

"Do you know anything at all about electrical apparatus?" asked the foreman.

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"What is an armature?" asked
the foreman.

"It's a guy who sings for Major Bowes."

Jasper: "Why do you want a rubber plant in your garden?"

Casper: "I want to raise tires for my garden truck."

Chairman: "The squire is now going to sing a comic song; and mind—no laughing from any of you at the back of the hall."

NEW OPAL-PINK RAINPROOFS FOR SUMMER EVENINGS

We need have no fear of thunder-storms on summer nights, for Schlaparelli has launched an idea for an evening rainproof. It is in bright opal pink with a hangman's hood and falls to the ground cape-wise. It is opaque and shadows the new slender waist-formed gown of printed persuasion worn beneath. These prints are legion and appear in lovely floral satins and silks for formal wear.

Less formal ones show cupid-on-the-wing, playing cards in splendid colours set out in rows, radio sets, domino brick in a new spotted fabric, and selections from Jean de Brunhoff's book for children.
"Babar," in both silks and cottons.
The hangman's hood is long and appears again trailled with turquoise on a white satin cape, one of the new ones, which is otherwise plain except for knife pleats at the back.

The evening binder or "lane"
frames the face in Mammy fashion, with curls taking a backward turn in the top opening. In short, it is an excellent hair tidy, and is attractive in silken crepe to match the contrast on an evening gown.
Bright opal pink for example, which surrounds the base of a tunic on an amethyst-toned silken crepe gown. This tunic opens down the centre front and gains interest from a shoulder drape when drawn up over the back corsage.

Opaline tints in rose, blue, green and yellow sway colour interest in fabrics for day and evening wear.
While one new narrow striped muslin with a crinkle is reserved for fête gowns, slender and youthful, with little fitted jacket tops.

New fastenings to skirts of suits show zippers running down the centre front of straight lines, and some jackets are tailored from plain vivella in bright colours.
An afternoon suit, on the other hand, is tailored from dark red, black and white checked surah silk, which also looks distinguished in purple for a frock worn under a long dark coat.

Most of the hats in this collection tilt backwards, with the new black lacquered kid used to form an all-round wide Breton type of brim beneath a short flower-pot crown. Black straws are stiff brimmed and shady with stalked bunches of sweet peas placed as though on a ledge beneath crowns at the back, while smaller straws of pillbox toque persuasion may have one rose with its long stalk thrust through the crown and bloom slanting down at one side.

SUMMER

STUD EARRINGS

Women will show their ears this season and adorn them with stud earrings, preferably pearls or diamonds.

The new hairdressing was united by the Duchess of Kent to go with her latest hat, worn at her first public function of King Edward's reign, the opening of an exhibition of British-made silk stockings at the Forum Club.

She had her hair arranged at the sides in two rows of curls, which curved upwards from the cheek to expose the ear. Four rows of curls at the back met them.
She wore pearl earrings.

FEATHER-TRIMMED

Her diminutive oval-shaped black pill-box hat was perched well over the right eye. The crown was covered by a black ostrich feather, which drooped at the back over the curls.

Under her fur-trimmed black coat she had a striking black gown with a raised spot design.

Two rows of pearls were the Duchess's choice of jewellery. She wore black gloves and stockings.

GUNMETAL STOCKINGS

The Duchess watched the process of making the black silk stockings worn by men at the royal levees.

"I like the finest stockings I can get," the Duchess told a woman hosier manufacturer. "I am looking forward to getting back into light colours."

She is having some fine gun-metal stockings in 51-gauze sent to her for selection.

A box of white socks was presented to her for Prince Edward.

Princess Marie Louise, president of the Forum Club, kissed the Duchess as she arrived.

FLOWERS AND FRUITS

NEW PRINTED FABRICS

The printed range of materials shows many novel designs this summer, and the fabrics are more varied. Smaller patterns are generally liked, but there are noticeable exceptions, such as a large pink iris printed on to a black satin.

Purple hydrangeas are woven on to a fine bluish-white chiffon, with belt, slip, hat and capelet of all-blue taffeta. This gives an ideal hot-day toilette. Young people choose organza with rosebuds on a white or green ground. A great favourite is the design with bunches of red currants clustered on to a white or a pink foundation of chiffon or satin.

Spots are suitable for more summery semi-tailored frocks. A novel way of making up these suits is to use them with a blouse or front of the design reversed.
For example, a red ground with a white spot has front and trimmings of white with a red spot, and an all-white hat. Currant-red is the chief choice whenever red is used. Shantung is another practical selection for the sporty range. Smart for summer mornings is a corselet-skirt of brown shantung with pale green spots with the full short coatee made in the green, with elbow sleeves slashed and a cool green lining.
With this an all-white vest, white shoes, hat and gloves can be worn.

All-white hats be the rage, sometimes relieved with a coloured butterfly in feathers.

Large flat Leghorn hats with wreaths of white flowers or feathers, or large shapes entirely composed of stitched tulle, and trimmed with cascades and rosettes of the same, are examples of the fine hand-work of the milliner.

FLOWER MOTIFS

The continued vogue for printed floral materials for afternoon dresses has inspired the designers to use the cut out flower motifs as a means of decoration and trimming. The cut-out motifs are backed with the finest muslin and attached lightly in soft groups upon sleeves or neckline, or used to outline the hem of a skirt or the border of a little bolero jacket.

There are even afternoon dresses in which the whole elbow-length sleeve is covered with little applique flowers. Needless to say, the floral motifs are cut from the same material in which the dress is made. The effect of these soft floral motifs standing out in relief from the background of the dress is extremely light and dainty.

SUMMERY EVENING FROCKS

Pleated skirts, tunics, soft frills disposed about the neckline or round the shoulders are features of the new evening frocks for the summer season.

Chiffon printed in bright colours, taffeta fullie which may be the background for lacquered designs, lace (frequently this is embroidered), and plain white crêpes, chiffon, organza with organdie are favourite materials.

Coats of plain net or chiffon are still shown with printed frocks, which are also worn with matching coats or coatees.

CASCADE OF CURLS

Fair, fluffy-haired girls will delight in this pretty hairdressing, which is especially suitable for hats that tip down over the right eye as the "pretties" come on the left side.

Soft waves run back on the right from the centre parting, but a froth of light, baby curls on the other side saves any hint of severity. These drop in a little cascade down one side, and stray coquettishly on to the forehead.

The whole head has that charming look of casual carelessness that is, in reality, carefully arranged!

This centre parting is particularly suitable for the girl with an oval face and a fairly low, broad forehead.

PRINTED SILKS FOR SUMMER

Printed silks for summer dresses are very flowery. On a white ground is a riot of tiny gay blossoms; on a soft green ground larger flowers are grouped in garden poses; on a brown foundation appear leaf shapes in tones from pal-est green to deepest russet. A poppy-garden design is attractive;
so is a tulip-time silk.

Then there are two-piece suits and simple dresses developed in heavy silks printed with orchard rather than flower garden produce. One example, showing apples rosy-red and green on a deep cream ground, seemed to be a good and practical proposition. The dress was simple in outline, a small kilted frill of white organdy die marking a bit effect on the bodice. The coat, half-length and swagger, had large puffed sleeves, no collar, and a bow tied close up to the throat. There were other fruit patterns in the collection which included this model, but the apples on twigs appeared the best illustration of the idea.

Hats And Summer Dresses

The house of the late Jean Pader showed a collection of summer ensembles last week which invited women to dress discreetly in soft colours, suave materials, and graceful lines. Many of the dresses are printed either with flower patterns or some neat design in spots. Crepes in blue and white and black and white are used to make coats and skirts, with a blouse in the same material but with the colours reversed—that is to say, the coat and skirt may have a groundwork of navy blue and a pattern in white, the blouse has the groundwork in white, the pattern in blue. The necklines are closed and may have a bow of ribbon to match the belt, both of which make a sharp contrast, light or dark, to the dress. When a bow is not worn a brooch may be, with a buckle on the belt to match. With a black-and-white printed dress is put a big yellow hat.

There are draped and frilled shoulder straps and the front of the bodice is usually softly draped or frilled. Some of the hats worn with summer dresses have tall crowns growing narrower as they rise and not very wide brims.

HAT ALONE

The last race meeting at Longchamp proclaimed that it is the hat alone which makes the ensemble look as if made for spring. The hats were flower and feather trimmed and some were very large. Here and there a three-quarter white cloth coat went over a slim black dress or a bright waistcoat gleamed when a fur or a coat was opened; but the general impression of dress was sober, even sombre.

Reboux has made a small exhibition of hats. Flower trimmings are widely used. Flat hats with narrow brims have close

FULLER FRONT

The skirts of dresses for afternoon are fuller in front than at the back. The evening dresses have full flowing backs, and one or two have full, loose trains, not very long, which are lined by a bright colour. Bright blouses go with colourless dresses, as when a broadly striped blouse in white, green, and red goes with a coat and skirt of natural shantung. A maize-coloured crepe dress has a purple sash. A little dinner dress is in black georgette and with it goes a short bolero in a colour like burnt brick and of fine jersey. Black varnished satin brightly printed with flowers is used for little jackets to be worn with simple dinner dresses of black or white. All-white silk pique dresses with long coats are made for summer evenings. Chiffons and crepes, organzas, and crisp muslin are used for formal evening dresses. They are full and flowing in the skirts, some have little sleeves, and the bodices are cut low behind, either to a wide or narrow point wreaths of little white flowers. A big straw hat has a bunch of brightly coloured flowers somewhere on the brim. Ribbon, too, is used. On the crown of a big black hat of fine straw or suede may be a bunch of watered silk ribbon, or, again, there may be a cache comb of ribbon to a big hat. The big hat of the moment has wide wing lines to the brim, suggestive of flying machines. The Gainsborough hat is likely to come into fashion now that the Gainsborough Ball has taken place. All the soft, sweeping lines of the big hats which were worn at that period lend themselves to ostrich-feather trimmings. Tulle is another material for hats.

USEFUL HINT

Before sewing hooks and eyes on washing frocks, boil them for a few minutes in strong soda-water and the they'll never rust.

ROUND THE SHOPS

LANE, CRAWFORD'S

Have just received a very wide selection of new hats in American Boaters and Linen Straws. The boaters are in fine and coarse straws of all shades, and most reasonably priced at $12.75. The linen straws are mostly in light shades, which should look cool as well. All the latest shapes imaginable are to be seen; prices for these are from $9.50. For those that are interested, we would like to mention that all these hats are being offered at a discount of 25 per cent. for just one week.

MAIZEES

"Nemo Sensation" girdles are the latest arrivals in Maizees this week and they have a full range and all sizes to offer their many customers.

RIVELLE

Is expecting another parcel of new goods by the Pres. Coolidge. Including in these lot are hats, dresses and evening gowns. This week they are showing some smart and useful white linen suits in all sizes.

MAYOS

Are showing white hats in coarse and smooth straws, lots of them in very attractive shapes.

GORDONS

For summer shoes, the Ladies Shoe specialist store have all the latest to offer in that line, as regular shipments have been received by them.

WIDE SKIRTS—OR NARROW?

Evening dresses for midseason are either cut on slimming lines or, have wide skirts.

Rows of crepe ribbon are used like braid to trim both skirts and bodices, large flowers make corsage bouquets, pleated frills border necklines and trim evening skirts, all of which are ground-length.

The wide-skirted dress is in black tulle trimmed with bands of crepe black satin bebe ribbon. It can be seen in the inexpensive frock section on the first floor at the Maison Ross, 19, Grafton-street, where a new collection of day and evening dresses for girls is being shown.

Another dance frock in this collection is in pale turquoise-coloured crepe chiffon with a softly draped cowl neckline edged with a three-inch-wide frill. Two outside waterlilies are fastened to one side of the bodice. The coatee has wide "loopy" sleeves open along the top to show the arm.

A pleated stick-up frill outlines the square-cut neckline of a white organza dress with a feather pattern in royal blue. A pleated frill runs vertically from neck to hem down the front. The stitched belt of royal blue crepe satin matches the circular cape.

To an evening dress of fine black crepe lace with black crepe chiffon Mr. Ross gives a deep flounce of the lace, horizontal bands of which appear on the black chiffon skirt.

The sash is of black crepe ribbon; a spray of yellow velvet nasturtiums is laid across the front of the square cut neckline.

Imagine! Instead of coating your lips, you can now stain them... tattoo them with a transparent, even, luscious color that really stays all day... and that's fully as exciting as the adventurous South Seas from which this idea came.

LACE HATS OF
ALL SIZES

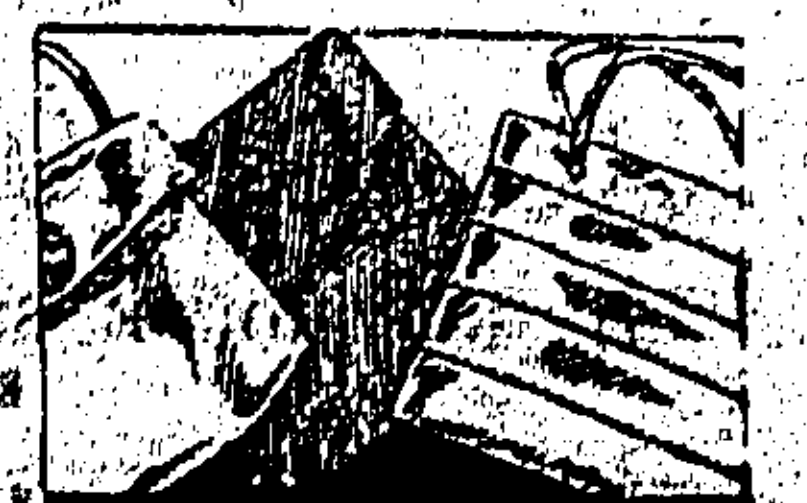

Very cool-looking and attractive are the new lace hats that the warm weather has brought out. Many are tiny capotes; others are in the boater or plateau style. A novelty is a mushroom coloured lace shape; resting on a closely curled coilure, with fanciful net rosettes as the trimming, all dyed to a similar tint. Fine lace gloves and tasselled gauntlets are worn with this hat.

The lure of lace has taken a firm hold on the milliner's imagination. Treatment of the coloured laces is entirely new and different from previous methods. Some time ago I predicted a lace season but I had not anticipated that lace would be manipulated so marvellously and would be so much to the fore in the leading millinery salons.

DAINTY ACCESSORIES

With lace are many feminine accessories in the way of flower and feather suitable as accompaniment. They all provide fashion thrills.

Tiny brims and small flat crowns give an elegant air to their wearers. Young girls, with their knowledge of poise, look their best in these light lace and tulle shapes on which are also placed flowers in many gay colours or the more restrained ostrich, feather mounts and halos of wings.

MAXIM GORKI, 'THE BITTER ONE,' DEAD

AUTHOR RUSSIA EXILED—THEN FETED

London, June 19.
One-time rag-picker, errand boy, tramp and dockhand, Maxim Gorki, famous Russian author, who became Poet Laureate of the Soviet after years of exile, died yesterday after a fortnight's illness. He was sixty-eight.
He had been suffering from heart and lung trouble.
Until four years ago he was revolutionary, first against the Tsars and after them the Bolshevik regime. His journal, "The New Life," was the last Socialist paper to be suppressed by the Bolsheviks, and as a protest he settled in Capri.
But during his exile he became converted to the Soviet ideal and wrote a full and appreciative biography of Lenin. In 1932 he was called home in state to the famous old town of Nijni Novgorod, where he was born, to hear it officially renamed "Gorki City."

TAUGHT TO READ
Maxim Gorki's real name was Pyeshkov. He adopted the pen-name of Gorki ("The Bitter One") as a reflection on his early youth: His father, a poor itinerant upholsterer, died when he was five. His mother marrying again, he was left to the care of a maternal grandfather.
Finally he became a cook on a Volga steamer, where the head cook was the first to teach the young Gorki to read.
At twenty-three he had succeeded in making himself a journalist and a short story writer of no mean repute. He quickly came under the influence of the great Russian writers Chekhov and Tolstol. Chekhov advised him to write plays.
He did. They were successes, but they were so bitter.

TELEVISION FOR TRAVELLERS

Theatres At Two London Stations

MAY BE OPENED THIS AUTUMN

(Special Air Mail Service)
London, June 23.
It is probable that, before the end of the year, passengers waiting at the great London railway stations will be able to go into a Television Theatre on the platform.
Both the Southern and the Great Western Railway Companies have obtained from the B.B.C. information about the establishment of television theatres in their main stations.
The television experts told the companies that, in the initial stages of television, the theatre should be very small and dimly lighted. Five rows, each containing eight seats, were suggested as the best arrangement, the front row being 5ft. from the picture.
The railway companies are now carefully considering the question of constructing such theatres.
A regular service of television should begin about the middle of October. The first experimental programmes will be sent out from the television station at Alexandra Palace, about the beginning of August, and from then until about mid-October will be the period of a prolonged dress rehearsal. This should yield good entertainment. There will be three programmes daily:—
3.00—4.00 p.m.
6.15—7.15 p.m.
9.30—10.30 p.m.

The television engineers calculate that the present receivers will be effective within 25 miles of the transmitting station. In practice, however, the distance may be doubled.
The price of a receiving set is from £60 to £80, but it is expected that it may soon be lower.

Some noisy relatives were visiting a couple, and happened to mention their dog, a big mongrel. "He's just like one of the family," said the pup's proud mistress.
"Which one?" asked the hostess.

A moderator of the Church of Scotland arrived at a country station to catch a train, only to discover that it had left five minutes earlier. He remonstrated with a porter, and asked if it would not have been possible to inform intending passengers of the change. The porter merely made reply: "Ye may be a D. "NELL GWYN"

AT THE KING'S

Anna Neagle, bursts into her full glory as "Nell Gwyn"—now showing at the King's Theatre with as ravishing a performance as the screen has been in many a month.

Miss Neagle plays Nell as history depicts her, bawdy, unrestrained and daring, a woman of unabashed personality, ready wit, and bodily charm the "Mae West" of the Restoration period. Never before have you seen an Anna Neagle like this one. She speaks in a broad Cockney accent, whether it be to King or bar-room cronies, and her language verges at times on the lurid. With her full lips and buxom figure she laughs her way through the film in a way that is wholly captivating.

The story, based on the pretty orange girl's historic love affair with King Charles II, keeps closely to history and brings back to vivid reality one of its most picturesque and romantic periods. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, with a make up which bears a most striking resemblance to the Stuart King, gives a vivid performance as Charles II. Charles emerges from the film not only as the Merry Monarch but as a great statesman. Whether he is playing the gallant lover to Nell or conferring with his ministers on matters of state, Sir Cedric makes the King arresting and entertaining.

A brilliant supporting cast, mainly famous stage personalities includes Jeanne de Casalis, Esme Percy, Helena Picard, Miles Malleon, Muriel George, Lawrence Anderson O. B. Clarence, Tonia Bruce and Moore Marriott.

"IN PERSON"

AT THE ORIENTAL THEATRE

A temperamental screen star falls in love with an independent male who curbs his affection on the grounds that her allure and national popularity are no excuse for her exasperating egotism. The stormy incidents which result from their rapidly alternating reactions to each other bring on a startling denouement.

This lively comedy-drama is brought to the screen in "In Person," in which Ginger Rogers has her first solo starring role. As the pampered lass who is forced to exert charm and strategem to win the man she loves, she is said to display to a high degree her flair for light dramatics. George Brent plays the leading male role opposite Miss Rogers.

From the story by Samuel Hopkins Adams, author of the screenplay of "It Happened One Night," "In Person," finds logical moments during which to introduce three popular songs and two dances interpreted by Ginger. In the distinct style which recently marked her brilliant work in "Top Hat," the titian-haired star dances in two smart numbers.

RUSSIA'S HUGE INCREASE IN POPULATION

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

500 Millions Within 35 Years

WORLD REVOLUTION DREAMS

Moscow, June 14.
It is estimated here that Russia's population within the next thirty-five years will have increased from 170,000,000 to the stupendous number of 500,000,000.

Last year, when the country's natural increase of population broke all records, reaching the figure of 4,500,000, the Kremlin refused to be worried. We must realise that this huge increase is the result of deliberate policy.

Up to now the Bolsheviks have mainly concentrated on industrialising a backward agrarian country in possession of tremendous natural resources. Now that they feel that this is on its way to fulfilment, they are looking ahead and are determined to tackle even greater tasks.

A "FINAL STRUGGLE"
The thought of "World Revolution," though relegated by them to the background, in the course of the internal struggle to socialise and collectivise Russia, has by no means been forgotten. "The final decisive struggle" between the Communists, who now control one-sixth of the globe on the one hand, and large sections of the united capitalist world on the other, is not to the Bolsheviks, a mere fantastic dream, but a grim reality, which calls for adequate preparation. Hence the firm determination to increase the population.

The absence of man-power, they are determined, is not to be a deterrent in their forthcoming struggle for power. Within the next few years they hope to reach a natural increase of 7,000,000 a year. Billions of roubles are now being set aside by the Government for the establishment of thousands of nurseries and kindergartens. Thousands of additional beds in maternity homes are being provided. The programme is sanctified by quotations from Lenin, who frankly urged workers to raise large families so that they may have the man-power necessary to wage the fight against capitalism. "Workers must raise children," he wrote, "who will fight for the re-making of the world. We fight better than our fathers, and our children will fight even better than we. And they will conquer."

NEW MORAL CRUSADE
As an immediate step in the direction of increasing the population, the Kremlin has undertaken an earnest campaign to stabilise family life and generally set Soviet morals in order. Motherhood is glorified, and divorced husbands who fail to provide alimony payments for the support of their children are being punished by a period of imprisonment. "Those men who are inconsiderate of the welfare of their offspring and brutally abandon them, putting the burden of their upkeep on the mothers, are discrediting the dignity of the Soviet citizen." Such is the tenor of a barrage of editorials that have been appearing in the press within recent weeks.

"Abortions, legalised by decree in 1930 and widely practised, must be prohibited. It is urged. In fact, a draft of a new law dealing with this problem is now the topic of general discussion.

Local authorities are convinced that as a result of the Government campaign, the birthrate in the country is certain to increase and far exceed the natural increase of 4,500,000 of last year.

The Bolsheviks are, in fact, determined to become a world force of great magnitude, and are now setting out to plan their population increase even as they have been planning the construction of factories and the agricultural output.

JAPAN WARNS NANKING OVER CUSTOMS CASE

Alleged Firing Subject Of Verbal Protest

TSINGTAO RIOT

Nanking, June 27.
Marking the first Japanese diplomatic demarché in Nanking in connection with the allegedly illegal firing at Japanese vessels by Chinese Customs cruisers. Mr. Motoki Matsumura, third secretary of the Embassy, to-day filed a verbal protest with the Waichao.

Acting on instructions from Tokyo, Mr. Matsumura is understood to have pointed out that Japan could not tolerate Chinese Customs cruisers opening fire upon Japanese ships engaged in legitimate trade and injuring the latter's crews under the pretext of curbing smuggling.

The Japanese official, it is further understood, drew the attention of the Chinese Government to the fact that the reported insults to the Japanese flag by the crews of the Customs cruisers would be regarded as slights towards the Japanese nation, regardless of whether or not the Japanese ship involved was engaged in smuggling.

Tsingtao, June 27.
Japanese officials here continued to-day to maintain a close watch on their nationals, following last night's abortive attempt to rush the home of Mr. A. Campbell, Customs Commissioner.

This followed the mob's failure to seize the Customs building, as a result of interference by the Japanese Consul Police, headed by their Chief, Mr. Eisho Shirakami.

These disturbances came in the wake of a spontaneous gathering of between 800 and 700 Japanese residents in the compound of the Tsingtao Jinja, a Shinto shrine.

The crowd assembled there at about 7 o'clock, one hour after the adjournment of a mass meeting at which a seven-point resolution, demanding an immediate settlement of the Moeki Maru case, was passed.

Harangued by glib-tongued agitators, the mob formed into two columns. Their leaders suddenly unfurled Japanese flags and started a march towards the Customs building.

Japanese consular police blocked the way of the demonstrators, and after a 30-minute scuffle managed to disperse them.

Remnants of the mob, augmented by other Japanese who hurried to the shrine on hearing of the disturbance, then formed a new procession and once again headed for the Customs building.

Forewarned by the Japanese Consul Police, the Customs officials had deserted the building. When the crowd arrived at their destination and found the building darkened, its leaders attempted to start a new march, towards the home of Mr. Campbell.

Strong cordons of Japanese police again halted the progress of the demonstrators and, finally, succeeded in dispersing them, at 10 o'clock in the evening.

The two-hour mass rally, which preceded the disturbances, was organized by the Tsingtao Development League, an organization dominated by Nipponese radical elements.

Prior to the meeting, Mr. Haruhiko Nishi and Commander Mino-

Tajiri, respectively Consul-General and resident naval officer here, served a warning on the representatives of the Japanese community to take no step that would prejudice the conduct of the Sino-Japanese negotiations on the settlement of the Moeki Maru case.

Reports received here from Port Arthur said that two destroyers would be sent to Tsingtao with special staff officers to investigate the Moeki Maru incident and make a detailed report to the commander of the Port Arthur station who is responsible for the patrolling of the North China coast.

CONSUL IN SHANGHAI
Mr. Akiyoshi Tajiri, Japanese acting Consul-General in Tientsin, who arrived here unexpectedly by air on Friday evening, yesterday conferred at length with Mr.

Shigeru Kawagoe, Japanese Ambassador, on the alleged firing at a Japanese vessel by a Customs preventive cruiser.
Mr. Tajiri also reported on the situation to Mr. Kazuo Kuwajima, director of the East Asiatic Affairs Bureau of the Tokyo Foreign Office, who arrived in the morning, also by air, from Hankow.

Mr. Tajiri's information, Domei learned on good authority, was the subject of a detailed dispatch to the Tokyo Government from the Ambassador.

Mr. Tajiri is expected to proceed to Nanking, as soon as he receives instruction from Tokyo, to confer with Mr. Yakichiro Suma, Japanese Consul-General there, through whom, it is understood, negotiations on the case will be undertaken with the Chinese authorities.—(N.C.D.N.)

DANGEROUS INTRIGUE

AT THE ALHAMBRA

"Dangerous Intrigue," at the Alhambra, concerns the trials and tribulations of a brilliant young surgeon, a role ably handled by Ralph Bellamy, who is forced to resign his position as head of an important New York hospital, after the daughter of a rich benefactor dies under his care. To prove that troubles do not come singly, his fiancée leaves him on account of this, and the doctor, suffering from amnesia brought about by shock, drifts to Scranton, Pennsylvania, where, under an assumed name, he finds work as an ordinary labourer in a steel mill. An amazing number of mysterious accidents begin to take place in the mill, and the doctor, by administering to some of the unfortunate workmen, reveals himself as a skilled physician and immediately is offered a more suitable position. As the accidents persist, the mill superintendent becomes suspicious and an investigation is started. Quite by accident, a young school-teacher, with whom the doctor falls in love, stumbles upon the cause of these accidents, and the end, while dramatic and tragic for the villain of the piece, ends very happily for the doctor and the girl he loves.

The story, though by no means brilliant, is neatly told, and may be ranked as fairly good entertainment.

LEAVE TO PRESUME DEATH

Application Held Over For A Fortnight

An application, on behalf of Mrs. Young Ling-shi, for presumption of death of her husband, Young (or Yung) Sing, alias Young (Yung) Wing-chong, alias Young Ming, late of 312 City Island Avenue, City Island, New York, in order that she be allowed to apply for letters of administration to his estate was made by Mr. George She, who was instructed by Mr. M. W. Lo, before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday.

In making the petition, Mr. She said that that the application was being made for letters of administration by his client to the estate of her husband, the man's demise may be presumed to have taken place on or since July 8, 1930, in the United States of America.

On that day in question, Young left New York for Elizabeth, New Jersey, ostensibly to collect some debts, since when nothing has been heard of, or seen of him. Investigations had been set afoot, but nothing was known of his whereabouts. Six months after his non-appearance, an advertisement was inserted in a Chinese newspaper in New York, this also had no effect.

THE POSSIBILITIES

Counsel then quoted authorities to show that the application could be granted although only six years had elapsed, provided reasonable presumption could be established.

Continuing, Mr. She said that in the affirmation of one Leung Tsim-mi, a dentist friend of Young, there appeared the clause "would return the same day." In other words, Young had told his friend a week before his disappearance that he would leave for Elizabeth to collect some debts and would return the same day. This, therefore, indicated Young's desire to return as soon as he had collected the debts and not to desert his people. On the day of his disappearance he was also in the proper state of mental health and it could not therefore be said that he had got out of his mind.

Ruling out these two possibilities of insanity and desertion, Counsel went on to say, there was also one vital point, namely that the wife had been in regular receipt of letters from him and it was on or about the time of his disappearance that the regularity abruptly ceased. Under these circumstances, it could reasonably be presumed that Young must have met his death in some manner as yet unascertainable.

"The comparative wealth," continued counsel, "of Mr. Young among his clansmen in New York and the fact that he had several debtors might have induced the underworld of New York to practise upon him and have him murdered."

His Lordship: I have no evidence here except his own statement that he was going to collect some debts. Was there any report made to the police about his disappearance or any enquiry made in all the hospitals?

Mr. She: A report was made to the police, but I don't think the hospitals had been examined.

His Lordship: He might have been knocked down by a vehicle and suffered loss of memory as a result.

Mr. She: In that case the New York police and the Chinese Consul who was acquainted with the facts would have heard of it.

His Lordship: But the Court must be satisfied of his death. I find nothing here in the nature of a police report which is a matter of primary importance in view of your statement a moment ago that his debtors might have invoked the aid of the underworld to get rid of him.

Mr. She: I don't suppose the police would decline to make the necessary enquiries, and besides Young was a well-known member of the Chinatown, which is rather small.

REGARDING ENQUIRIES

His Lordship: The smaller it is the easier it could be to make enquiries. Can you indicate to me whether enquiries were made about his debtors in Elizabeth?

Mr. She: I don't think the debtors are of any relevance to this case.

His Lordship: But I understand your suggestion was that owing to the existence of the debtors that he met his death?

Mr. She: I suggest, that his death might have been largely caused by his wealth, not so much by the debtors.

His Lordship: His wealth consisted very largely of deposits and it is a very poor way to get the money by cutting the throat of a person.

Mr. She: I assume that those who played foul on him didn't know of that.

His Lordship: But I still think that a report should have been obtained from the Police, to show that enquiries had been made by them.

Mr. She: I think your Lordship must assume it to be so because if the police found anything they would have communicated that fact. The reason why a report was not obtained from the police was because my client did not know she could apply for letters of administration to the estate. It was only a short time ago that she was advised she could do so. If your Lordship feels you are not satisfied, I am quite prepared to accept any direction you may see fit to impose.

FURTHER AFFIDAVIT NECESSARY

His Lordship: I am very reluctant indeed to give any directions, because it would incur heavy expenses but I would like to have a further affidavit to show whether in fact there were debtors in Elizabeth, and whether the missing man ever reached there and just what the police said about it. People have been known to leave home before over such period of six years; the other alternative is the fact that he may have suffered a term of imprisonment exceeding six years. Such things are not unheard-of.

His Lordship then directed that the application be held over for a fortnight in order to file a further affidavit.

It is understood Mr. Young left local estate value at $25,000.

A SIMILAR APPLICATION GRANTED

A similar application was also brought by Mrs. Chiu Kwan Shau, the wife of Chiu Chung-fan, late of Yu Lam Terrace, Hong Kong.

Mr. She said his responsibility in this motion was less exacting because he had the advantage of being able to invoke the law since it was more than seven years ago that the man had not been heard of. According to the affirmation, Mr. Chu was 24 years of age and a student at the time of his disappearance. His quest for pleasure often led him to be absent from home for several days but he had invariably returned.

On June 22, 1926, he left home, saying he was going to Macao and since then he had not been seen or heard of by his people. After waiting for a week, his wife instituted enquiries but these failed to elicit his whereabouts, partly owing to the fact that Mrs. Chu did not know many of her husband's friends or his various rendezvous. In the same year she inserted two advertisements in a local newspaper appealing for information as to his whereabouts, but these also failed.

Things would have remained in this resigned way, which was so characteristic of the Chinese, had not the Estate Duty Commissioner made enquiries about the estate of Mr. Chu, which was $80,000 and which was left to him by his father who died about two years before his disappearance.

His Lordship: You have here a young man who in your own words was pleasure-loving and he may have found pleasures which induced or tempted him to remain away from his home for ten years. Ulysses have been known to remain away from their homes for such period!

Mr. She: But your Lordship must realise that the publicity service at that time was not so well organised as now.

His Lordship granted the application.

COMMISSION ON SALE OF A HOUSE

CLAIM HEARD IN COURT

An action arising out of the sale of a house in Kowloon Tong was continued yesterday before the acting Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden in the Summary Court.

F. W. White, represented by Mr. A. el Arculli, is claiming the return of a sum of $110 from Gordon States, represented by Mr. M. A. da Silva, which sum, the plaintiff claims, is due to him in respect of commission on the sale of No. 5, Kent Road, Kowloon Tong. Defendant denies the indebtedness.

Defendant stated yesterday that he had been bothered by the plaintiff to such an extent that he had told him that he (defendant) would accept $12,000 for the house, well knowing that the market at that time would not bring more than that sum. Anything above this sum was for the plaintiff.

It came as a surprise when he answered the advertisement in the newspaper, he found that the advertiser was the same man as plaintiff had introduced as a potential buyer previously, but who had considered the price of $15,000 too high. The house was, through this advertisement, sold for the sum of $11,000.

Defendant denied ever having arranged the sale on a commission basis of 1 per cent. He had told the plaintiff that he could keep whatever he could get above the stated $12,000.

The case was adjourned until August 14.

LADY CALDECOTT LOCAL WEDDINGS AT Y.W.C.A.

Informal Visit To Members

INTEREST IN WORK

Lady Caldecott, wife of the Governor, paid an informal visit to the Young Women's Christian Association yesterday in order to meet members of the Board and the committee and a few friends.

Received by members of the nursing division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade at the entrance, Lady Caldecott was later greeted by the President (Mrs. Paul S. F. Tso), the general secretary (Miss Sin Tak-hing) and Mrs. Ma Ying-pui, Mrs. Ma Ping-chan and Dr. Katie Woo, members of the Board.

Addressing the gathering, Mrs. Tso said:

We have a great honour in greeting Lady Caldecott this afternoon for she has not been with us very long and has just recovered from an illness, yet she can fix such an early date to pay us a visit. For that we are very grateful.

From this fact alone we can see that Lady Caldecott has a great interest in the work of our Association, and we can therefore look forward to her assistance, guidance and inspiration while she is here.

NEEDS HELP

While our association is the only Chinese women's organisation in the Colony and while our Association's aim is to help all Chinese women here, not only physically, intellectually and socially but also spiritually, we therefore need help from all quarters and all persons.

And who can give us a greater help than Lady Caldecott, for any matter concerning the welfare of the Chinese women in the Colony?

On behalf of the members of the Board I extend her a hearty welcome.

Mrs. Tso then presented Lady Caldecott with a sandal wood fan as a souvenir of the visit.

In answer to Mrs. Tso, Lady Caldecott thanked her for the kind words and expressed her thanks to the Y.W.C.A. for the party.

She said she had always taken a great interest in the Y.W.C.A. in Singapore and Kuala Lumpur and wanted to take some interest in the Hong Kong Institution. She hoped she would have the opportunity of getting to know the work and members more and to make more visits.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist are to spend their honeymoon in Japan.

COMMITTAL CASE NOT SERIOUS

Magistrate Rules On Proceedings

A BRIBERY CHARGE

At the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday proceedings were begun against Wong On, interpreter of the Sanitary Department, who was charged with accepting a bribe of $5 from Ip Shu, a woman.

Mr. J. M. Abbott, who appeared for the prosecution, said that the giving of the bribe was witnessed by another woman who, however, was not aware at the time that money was being handed to Wong. Five dollars had been borrowed by Ip Shu from this woman.

Mr. Abbott asked for the case to be taken for committal. Mr. Hin Shing Lo for the defence, opposed the application, but the Magistrate ruled that he would and that after he had heard all the evidence he would decide whether it should be committal or a summary case.

An erroneous impression was prevalent, he said, that a case taken for committal was necessarily a serious one, but this really was not so. If, however, he took the case at the outset as one for summary action, he could not retract from his decision, but if the reverse were the case, he could change his mind at any period.

WOMAN WARNED

Inspector W. T. Bilson, of the Sanitary Department, gave evidence of warning Ip Shu against the manufacture of bean curd and rice cakes at Gilles Avenue. A licence was necessary, he said.

Following repeated visits, the woman made "a communication" to him of so serious a nature that he wished her to repeat it to his immediate superior officer.

Gross examined by Mr. Lo, Bilson said that to the best of his knowledge the woman never came to the office to see either him or Wong, who bore an exemplary character and was a good worker.

The case was adjourned.

"PERSECUTING NOT PROSECUTING"

Revenue Officer Objects To Solicitor's Remark

OPIUM POSSESSION CASE

A most unusual incident occurred in the Central Court yesterday during a case in which a Chinese was charged with possession of opium.

During cross-examination by Mr. C. McCallum who appeared for the defence, a number of questions put by him were objected to by the prosecuting officer, Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmitt, who brought forth the remark that the latter "was persecuting and not prosecuting."

R. O. Grimmitt objected very vigorously on that point saying that in his 25 years' experience in prosecuting cases in Court, he had never been accused of such. He further said that he would report to the Superintendent of the Imports and Export Department.

Mr. McCallum remarked he was asking the witnesses for the prosecution perfectly legitimate questions, and he could not see any reason or reasons why he should be stopped in the middle of the cross-examination.

R. O. Grimmitt had one of his officers in Court talked to Mr. E. W. Hamilton, the Superintendent of the Imports and Exports Department over the telephone and reported to the latter of the incident. Later Mr. Hamilton arrived at Court.

He told His Worship that it had been brought to his notice that one of the officers of his department of which he was head was said to have been persecuting and not prosecuting a case (the present one), and it was of utmost importance to the department that he should go into the matter. He asked for seven days' remand in order to do that.

THE CASE

The case was that of an unemployed man who was charged with having in possession 210 taels of non-Government prepared opium at Sai Kong Wharf, Connaught Road Central June 20 last.

The facts of the charge as outlined by R. O. Grimmitt were that at about 5.30 a.m. on the day and at the place mentioned, defendant was seen coming off the s.s. "Wing Wah" by Chinese Revenue Officer No. 111. Defendant was carrying a basket of lichees. He was challenged and the opium was found hidden under the lichees. He said frankly that he was bringing the opium for a man from Kwong-chow and would be paid for doing that. The opium was to be brought to No. 49 Belcher Street. An European Revenue Officer accompanied defendant to that address but found it was occupied by a respectable family.

Further evidence for the prosecution was then called, and after the defence had produced two witnesses, the hearing was adjourned to 11 a.m. on Saturday. Mr. J. H. B. Lee heard the case.

SIXTEEN INCH GUNS

May Be Mounted On New U.S. Battleships

Washington, July 1. Questioned at a press conference today as to whether the United States intended to mount sixteen inch guns on the two projected new battleships, Admiral William Standley, acting Secretary of the Navy, said that would depend upon the decisions made when the designs were finished.

HONG KONG, JULY 3, 1936.

BRITAIN AND EGYPT

The sudden return of Sir Miles Lampson, the British High Commissioner in Egypt, to London in order to consult the Government has naturally aroused misgivings about the progress of the treaty negotiations between Britain and Egypt. The negotiations, which opened in March, have for their object the resolution of the four "reserved" points which were left to the absolute discretion of the British Government when it declared Egypt independent in 1922, and which materially diminished the reality of that independence: they are the security of Imperial communications (which means the Suez Canal), defence, the protection of foreign interests and minorities, and the status of the Sudan. At the beginning of this year the British Foreign Office insisted that two points, that future military arrangements in Egypt and the position of the Sudan, should be the subject of a preliminary agreement, and it has been on the first of these two problems that discussions have hitherto centred. Egypt is represented by an all-party delegation, including Nahas Pasha, the Wafd leader, who has lately, after a sweeping electoral victory, become Prime Minister, while Sir Miles Lampson has been assisted by officers of the three services. Although the discussions were delayed by the election and by the death of King Fuad, there seems no doubt that lack of progress must be attributed to the stiff attitude adopted by the British military advisers. And because after the middle of July negotiations will have to be suspended for three months owing to the summer heat, it is greatly to be hoped that Sir Miles Lampson will succeed in persuading the British Cabinet to make such reasonable concessions as may offer a real opportunity for a final settlement. For if the autumn comes and no agreement is in sight the dangerous consequences.

In 1930 Nahas Pasha and the late Mr. Arthur Henderson made such progress with negotiations that only one small point, relating to the Sudan, was left unsettled. In the draft treaty which was then framed it was laid down that British troops consisting of 8,000 soldiers and 3,000 airmen should remain for twenty years in the immediate neighbourhood of the Suez Canal, and that in the meantime a native Egyptian army should be trained by a British military mission. The question whether Egypt had become capable of defending herself and whether the British forces could be withdrawn was to be left open for settlement at the end of the period by some form of conciliation. The present Egyptian delegation seems to have realised that the Italian annexation of Abyssinia, the tension in the Mediterranean, and the presence of considerable Italian forces in Libya upon Egypt's western frontier have for the time being greatly altered the situation. But if the Egyptians have proved willing to consider some changes in the 1930 draft the demands upon the British side seem to have increased, and it is now asserted that the present Government would never in any case, even had circumstances been normal, have consented to the proposals in the draft treaty which were accepted by a Labour Government. It seems that the British War Office not only seeks a much bigger force in Egypt and asks that it should be placed near the Libyan frontier as well as near the Suez Canal but also that the existing military occupation of Cairo and Alexandria should continue, and that no definite stipulation shall be made about the date of the final

DANZIG PROBLEM DISCUSSED

Secret Meeting Of Council

COMMISSIONER THERE

Geneva, July 2. A secret meeting of the League Council was called this afternoon at which, it is understood, questions concerning Danzig were discussed. The League High Commissioner for Danzig (Mr. Sean Lester) reached Geneva last night and will report in the first instance to Mr. Eden, as President of the League Council and M. Beck, as representative of Poland, the country charged by the League with the care of Danzig's external affairs upon the recent incidents in the free city. It will be decided whether or not to add the matter to the agenda of the present League Council which is expected to meet again on Friday.

Recently the High Commissioner and authority of the League in Danzig have been the subject of bitter attacks in the Danzig National Socialist press. These attacks incidentally have been re-echoed in certain German newspapers. —British Wireless.

THE DARDANELLES

New Treaty Is Likely To Be Signed

withdrawal of the British forces. It appears that the Egyptians, on the other hand, would agree to an increase in the size of our forces and to changes in their geographical distribution but not to their presence in Egypt for an indefinite duration nor to their unlimited control of the two principal cities. The Egyptians no doubt have good cause to believe that no Egyptian Government could survive which permitted the indefinite British military occupation of the capital and of the chief port.

If these are the facts which lie behind the present difficulty there is plainly room for compromise. The proposal to refer the position in regard to defence to conciliation in twenty years' time seems reasonable, and would it not be possible to arrange for a military base elsewhere than in the heart of Cairo if Egypt would guarantee facilities for our naval base in Alexandria? But whatever the details of such arrangements, the British Government would be most foolish to throw away this chance of resolving the problems which have poisoned Anglo-Egyptian relations for fifteen years. In previous treaty negotiations the difficulties have been two: first, that the Wafd, which as the extreme nationalist party was anti-British in origin found anything short of complete independence extremely distasteful, and secondly, that any Egyptian delegation that entered into an agreement with Britain was liable to be overthrown either by the King or by the electorate for its pains. But these two obstacles no longer exist. The Wafd, having won a free election and formed a Government, are eager to reach a final settlement with Britain which will reflect credit on themselves, and are therefore more accommodating than they have ever been. Moreover, since King Fuad is dead and there is a Regency which they have themselves approved, they have no reason to fear that their efforts will be frustrated by the Palace. The British public, one would think, has the right to know exactly what is standing in the way of this excellent opportunity for concluding a final treaty with Egypt. Hitherto all the discussions have been veiled in the deepest secrecy, and suspicions that the British Defence Department are putting a spoke into the wheel of negotiation need to be allayed.

DOMINIONS EXPRESS OPINIONS

Declare Maintenance Of No Further Avail

QUESTION OF DANZIG

Expressions of opinions by delegates for the Dominions on the lifting of sanctions against Italy marked Wednesday's meeting of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva.

A speech in favour of their maintenance was made by the South African representative, although the Australian and Canadian delegates remarked that it seemed useless to continue them.

The Italian journalists responsible for the disturbance which greeted Emperor Haile's address on Tuesday have been expelled from Geneva.

JOURNALISTS LEAVE

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Geneva, July 1. The British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, began his speech in the League Assembly on Wednesday by referring to the speech of the Negus, which had been delivered in dignity and had aroused the sympathy of all listeners.

Nobody present could be satisfied with the circumstances under which the Assembly had met. It was all the more necessary, in the interest of the League of Nations as a whole, to look the facts squarely in the face. Everybody knew that the sanctions had not fulfilled their purpose. It had not been the measures themselves that had been ineffective, but the conditions under which they were expected to work.

Nothing but military action could alter the situation in Abyssinia and the speaker did not believe that in the present state of world affairs such an action would be considered. If the British Government were of the opinion that the maintenance or tightening-up of sanctions could change the situation in Abyssinia, it would be willing to co-operate in such a policy, but the speaker regretted having to affirm that under the present circumstances a continuance of sanctions could serve no useful purpose.

NON-RECOGNITION
At the same time the British Government was of the opinion that the Assembly should in no way recognise the Italian annexation of Abyssinia.

Going on to deal with the future of the League of Nations, Mr. Eden declared although this time they had to admit failure in securing a victory for the law of right over the law of might, that by no means meant that this aim should be abandoned. On the contrary, this idea must form the starting point of the League reform.

Referring to the speech which Premier Leon Blum had recently held on the necessity of strengthening the authority of the League, Mr. Eden assured the Assembly of Great Britain's co-operation, stressing, however, that the experiences of the past few months must be taken into consideration. If the present failure was due to the fact that not all nations were ready to go to the furthest consequences, then not the provisions of the League Covenant, but the method of its execution must be changed.

VIEWS CONFLICT

The Canadian Delegate, Mr. Massey, spoke in favour of raising the sanctions, but the first speaker in the afternoon, the South African Delegate, Mr. de Water, opened the proceedings with an attack on the attitude of the Great Powers in deciding to drop the sanctions, and strongly demanded their continuation. Unprovoked aggression must be resisted, or the Covenant would fall to pieces if the great powers openly admit their impotence. A renunciation of collective action resolved upon was a betrayal to world peace and the League of Nations, and the South African Union would protest against a declaration which must destroy for all times the international confluence and every hope in world peace. Referring to the legal objections which had been raised against the continuance of sanctions, Tawater declared it was not so much punishment of the aggressor, but loyalty to the League. The speaker concluded by saying that the future co-operation of the South African Union with the League of Nations was a matter of doubt if the League of Nations did not fulfil its obligations.

SURRENDER OF AUTHORITY.

Geneva, July 1. Mr. C. T. de Water, South African High Commissioner in London and the Union's representative on the Assembly, said his Government felt the proposal to abandon sanctions could only be interpreted as a surrender of the League of Nations' authority, not because of the powers' impotence to safeguard that authority, but as a fatal denial of their ability to bear the sacrifices necessary for the fulfilment of their obligations.

In contrast to the South African standpoint, the Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Vincent Massey, said it seemed clear there was no appreciable number of effective members of the League willing to undertake whatever compulsion, including war, might be necessary to secure the original objective of sanctions.

He recalled that the imposition of sanctions was first proposed by Canada, but while greatly regretting their failure in the joint attempt to protect a weak fellow-member of the League, there would now appear to be no practical alternative for Canada but to support the discontinuance of these penalties.

AUSTRALIA'S VIEWS

Australia would agree with the view that sanctions were now useless, said Mr. S. M. Bruce.

He said that after a review of all the facts the Australian Government thought the moment had now been reached when as far as the Abyssinian dispute was concerned sanctions were of no further avail and should be lifted. "It will be useless for the League to continue sanctions now and have to capitulate within a few months owing to the impossibility of maintaining them," he said. "It is only fair to Abyssinia that we should declare ourselves there and then. Haven't we mislaid that unfortunate country long enough?" he asked.

But Different Situations

London, July 1. Viscount Cranborne, in the House of Commons, was asked whether the Foreign Secretary's attention had been called to the occupation by the Italians of Moyale, which was a town shown as being in Kenya Colony.

He replied that there were two places called Moyale, one in Kenya and the other in Abyssinia. It might be that the Italian forces had occupied Moyale in Abyssinia. There was no reason whatever to suppose they had occupied Moyale in Kenya, which was moreover, a military post. —British Wireless.

EXPULSION FROM GENEVA

Journalists Who Heckled Negus

TAKEN TO FRONTIER

Geneva, July 1. The Swiss federal government has decided not to prosecute the Italian journalists who participated in yesterday's demonstration against the Emperor Haile Selassie in the hall of the League of Nations Assembly.

The Italian Minister to Switzerland has protested and requested that the journalists be given a reasonable amount of time before they are expelled and conducted to the nearest point on the Italian frontier. It is considered probable the request will be granted.

The eight correspondents who were arrested were released from gaol to-night and will be expelled from the Canton of Geneva for the duration of the Assembly to-morrow.

It is gathered that they will go to the lakeside hamlet of Coppet in the neighbouring Canton of Vaud, from where they will be able to send their reports to Italy. —Reuter.

SHORT NOTICE

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Geneva, July 2. The Italian journalists who were arrested at the commencement of the speech of the Negus for causing disturbances, have been expelled from the Canton of Geneva.

The Chief Justice of the Police, Department of the Canton of Geneva, M. Nicolle, informed the journalists of the expulsion order immediately after their release from prison and warned them that they must leave the Canton before Wednesday midnight.

Since the announcement, was made only two minutes before departure of the last train to Italy, the journalists were not able to return to their hotel and get their luggage.

They therefore hired a motor car and left Geneva for Coppet, in the neighbouring Swiss Canton of Vaud, 10 minutes before midnight.

The Italian Minister to Switzerland, the Italian General Consul in Geneva and numerous friends accompanied them to Coppet. —Lancaster News Service.

COLLEAGUES' SYMPATHY

Geneva, July 1.

Great solidarity is shown in Italian circles with the arrested journalists. The Propaganda Minister, Alfieri, sent a telegram to the Italian Consul here, asking him to convey to the journalists, "who are treated like criminals because they could not restrain their extreme indignation at the insult to their country," his sympathy.

The Italian evening papers express regret that the "useless provocative exhibitionism of the so-called Abyssinian delegation was permitted," and severely criticised the Rumanian Foreign Minister Titulescu, who, shouting "Out with the savages!" demanded the removal of the protesting Italian journalists.

In responsible Italian quarters, however, it is admitted that the behaviour of the journalists during the speech of the Negus was a grave psychological error. —Transoceanic News Service.

Efforts

RETURN TO UNION

London, July 2. The South African Minister of Defence Mr. O. Pirow, who left for Capetown yesterday after spending three weeks in England, made a statement to-day expressing his satisfaction to the United Kingdom ministers for their readiness to appreciate the South African viewpoint on defence matters.

There had been useful discussions about Capetown Defences which would enable him make proposals to the Union Government which he said he considered highly satisfactory.

There had been an agreement that civil air routes in Africa, more particularly in due course along the west coast, should be developed in close consultation between the United Kingdom and South Africa.

Expansion of the Capetown harbour scheme, in terms of what is known in South Africa as "a long range scheme" would mean a radical improvement of dock and repair facilities and would certainly favour increased use of the port by mercantile shipping.

Shipping interests consulted had expressed the opinion that increased use of the South African route is likely to be maintained.

This route is a possible alternative for some of the traffic between the United Kingdom and Australia which now passes through the Mediterranean.

Both the United Kingdom Board of Trade and Australian ministers consulted showed themselves sympathetic with the proposed expansion.

Mr. Pirow added that a number of minor matters, mostly of a technical nature and dealing with the supply of certain types of machine guns, aeroplanes etc., had been disposed of in consultation.

"The Times" describes Mr. Pirow's mission as a "welcome but not unexpected proof that the basis of Empire co-operation resides where in the last analysis it must reside—in the common needs of its constituent members."

It adds that at a moment when most of the world is thinking largely in terms of defence such evidence of working solidarity within the Empire is all the more encouraging.

QUESTIONS IN COMMONS

London, July 1. The British Government had been in touch with the United States Government in regard to the general problem of smuggling in North China, stated Lord Cranborne, Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a written reply to questions in Parliament by Sir John Wardlaw Milne.

Lord Cranborne also stated that he understood that representations had been made by the United States Government to the Japanese Government with regard to smuggling. These representations followed similar lines to those made by Great Britain, and the reply was similar to that received by the British Ambassador on May 4 and outlined in the answer given in the House of Commons on May 20.

Replying to Mr. James Rankin, Lord Cranborne said the Government had received no information confirming the press reports of an attack upon the Commissioner of Customs at Tsingtao, though it is understood a Japanese mob unsuccessfully attacked the Customs House there on the night of June 25.

It was also understood that a Japanese warship was at present cruising off Tangku, but the British Government had no knowledge of the reasons for its presence there.—Reuter.

Candidates must be British subjects of non-Asiatic domicile between 21 and 24 years of age, and must have qualified by examination, for good honours degrees of an approved university.

Entries closed on June 12 and 264 Europeans with the necessary qualifications have entered for appointment by selection. Of the selected candidates 58 have entered also examination.

Net entries in London are therefore 333 Europeans and 248 Indians. The number of entrants for the Delhi examination, confined to candidates domiciled in India, is not yet available.—British Wireless.

HUGE PUBLIC DEBT

Washington, July 1.

The United States' deficit for the fiscal year just ended is the largest in the peace-time history of the nation. It will total approximately $4,400,000,000.

This gloomy news was announced to millions of American radio listeners last night by Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, during a nation-wide broadcast hook-up.

Mr. Morgenthau announced the following figures:—Public Debt.—$33,750,000,000. 1935-36 Receipts.—$4,116,000,000. 1935-36 Expenditure.—$8,566,000,000.

The expenditure, which was more than twice the revenue, does not include Debt Retirement.

Mr. Morgenthau said that if the funds necessary for payment of the Veterans' Bonus were left out of the accounts, the deficit would have been only $2,700,000,000.

Some encouragement could be seen in the fact that the national income was steadily rising, expenditure was declining, and the nation's business was showing a steady improvement, he said.

The speaker declared that the budget estimates made nearly two years ago were thrown out of adjustment by unforeseen events.

Prospective revenues were severely cut down by the Supreme Court decisions against the A.A.A., causing a loss to the Treasury of nearly $500,000,000. The passage of the Veterans' Bonus Bill against the veto of the President also necessitated an increased expenditure of $1,700,000,000.

The United States Treasury borrowed over $5,000,000,000 during the year, but had $2,700,000,000 left in Cash Balance to meet the coming month's expenditure.

The Government also had an important cash asset in the $2,000,000,000 Stabilisation Fund, which ultimately be used to retire like amount of the Public Debt.—Reuter.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS

London, July 2.

Mme. Sperling, the Danish tennis player, sprang a surprise to-day when she defeated Mme. Mathieu in the semi-finals of the Wimbledon women's singles.

Mme. Sperling, who was before her marriage Fraulein Krakwinkel and rated Germany's No. 1 woman in 1932, had a comparatively easy win over the Frenchwoman, securing victory in straight sets with the loss of only five games.

MISS JACOB'S WIN
Mme. Sperling's opponent in the final will be Miss Helen Jacobs, American contender, who beat Miss Jedzejowska of Poland in the second semi-final, also in straight sets.

Mme. Sperling and Miss Jacobs have met frequently with alternate success, one of their most famous meetings being in the semi-final at Wimbledon in 1931 when Mme. Sperling won.

Brugnon and Borotra, the veteran French pair, showed they were still a force to be reckoned with when they defeated Cunningham and Ito in the quarter-finals of the men's doubles.

Miss Helen Jacobs (America) defeated Miss Jedzejowska (Poland), 6-4, 6-2.

Tuckey was less successful in the third round of the mixed doubles when he and Miss Peggy Scriven lost to Mme. Mathieu and Marcel Petra of France. It was a hard fought match of three sets, extending over 33 games.

Fred Perry and Miss Dorothy Round, holders of the mixed doubles title advanced to the fifth round with a fine victory over Mlle. Couquerque and Hans Timmer of Holland. They were also extended the full distance.

A further British upset occurred when H. W. Austin and Miss K. Stammers fell victims to Donald Budge and Mrs. Sarah Fabryan, while C. E. Maltroy and Mme. Sperling caused something of an upset when they beat Jacques Brugnon of France and Mlle. Jedzejowska of Poland in straight sets.—Reuter.

JONES BEATS WILDE

London, June 14.

When, in alternate years, the Wightman Cup match is played in this country, the absence of some of our best women players renders the Beckenham Tournament a little less brilliant than it is in the years between, when nearly all of them compete there; but the Kent Championships started on the second half-century of their existence, despite this fact, with an entry which still gave them a claim to the title they have so long held—that of a "dress rehearsal for Wimbledon."

Rain delayed the start of play, and it was under a lowering sky and on a slippery surface that Jones and Wilde went into court to play a match which, in the conditions, was a very good one.

Both men had fine services, which skidded from the pitch, and scored many an ace. Wilde was the first to break through, but his advantage was soon neutralised, and Jones was never afterwards headed.

He had a point for the set at 6-5, but it was not till nine games later that he finally secured it. He was just a little better off the ground than Wilde was and his long reach enabled him to pick up and return many of Wilde's deffest drop-shots.

The final game of the set ended with Wilde flat on the ground in an endeavour to save a lovely passing shot of the American's. Once ahead, Jones did not look back; he won Wilde's service to lead 4-2, this being a very fine game, in which some of Wilde's passing shots on the run could not have been better played by anyone.

Wilde then lost his service but Jones then lost his, and the match was still alive; but in the last two games the American was in full career and won at 8-4.

U.S.A. to win the Kent Championship since W. M. Johnston in 1923.

The match between Miss Nuthall and Senorita Lizana was an extraordinary one. In the first set Miss Nuthall was at the top of her form, and the Chilean champion could not get at home with the damp court, energetic and agile as she is. Miss Nuthall was home at 6-3. Then came a surprising change. In the second set Senorita Lizana put on some socks over her shoes, and it worked like magic.

She only lost four points in the six games; and, now thoroughly enjoying herself, took the third set with the loss of only one game—a tour de force which the spectators will long remember. Seldom does such a rapid change come over an important singles final.

Men's Singles—D. N. Jones beat H. D. Wilde, 11-9, 6-3.

Women's Singles—Sta. A. Lizana beat Miss B. Nuthall, 3-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Men's Doubles—F. H. D. Wilde and C. E. Hare beat F. J. Perry and C. E. Maltroy, 6-3, 6-2.

HARD TO ESTIMATE

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)
Munich, July 2.

The final reports of expenses and receipts in connection with the fourth winter Olympic games, held in Garmisch-Partenkirchen at the beginning of this year have now been announced by the Vice-President and Treasurer of the Winter Olympics, Dr. Doehlemann.

It is pointed out how difficult it is to make estimates for such functions. Thus the treasurer says that the estimates were at first made to 1,000,000 Marks, but were in fact 2,618,259 Marks, while the total receipts were estimated at 2,415,388 Marks.

Of this, sum however, 1,254,000 Marks were received in the form of subsidies from the Government, municipalities and the Reichs Sport Fund.

The deficit of 202,890 Marks is still to be met by the Government.—Transocean News Service.

Guinea Gap, a racehorse owned by Lady Nuttall, won the Royal Hunt Cup, to-day's big race at Ascot.

The result was:
Guinea Gap 28-1
Volius 33-1
Roscreag 33-1

It is not often that a woman owner wins a big race at Ascot, and cheers greeted Lady Nuttall when she went down to the saddling enclosure as Guinea Gap was brought in.

"VERY THRILLED"
As she patted the horse's neck Lady Nuttall said: "I am naturally delighted and very thrilled to have won the Hunt Cup."

"I am especially pleased because Guinea Gap is my favourite animal. It has run in six races this season and has never been out of the first three. I am very thrilled."

Lady Nuttall, who was in a gown of soft pink with a wide picture hat, was warmly congratulated from all sides as she made her way back from the unsaddling ring.

The Aga Khan, whose much fancied horse Hiran did not finish in the first three, was among the first to shake her by the hand.

THE GERMAN FLEET Its Strength To-day EFFICIENCY AND ENTHUSIASM Work Of The Navy League

London, June 20.

The Anglo-German Naval Agreement of June, 1935, formally released Germany from the naval restrictions of the Versailles Treaty, and left her free to maintain a fleet the total tonnage of which "shall never exceed a percentage of 35 of the aggregate tonnage" of the naval forces of the British Empire. Provided that the total 35 per cent ratio is not exceeded, Germany's normal submarine tonnage is not to be greater than 45 per cent of that of the British Empire.

At the same time she has the right to possess a submarine tonnage equal to that of the British Empire, if, in the opinion of the German Government, the situation makes it necessary. Any intention to increase beyond the 45 per cent, however, is to be notified to the British Government, and will be the subject of friendly discussion before the right is exercised.

The German Navy now includes the following modern vessels built, building, or projected:—

Battleships.—Three 10,000-ton vessels (pocket-battleships) armed with 11-inch guns. Two 8,000-ton ships, with 11-inch guns, are under construction.

Cruisers.—Six 6,000-ton cruisers, armed with 5.9-inch guns. Two 10,000-ton ships, with 8-inch guns, are building.

Aircraft Carrier.—One projected. Design not yet settled.

Destroyers.—Twelve of 800 tons, armed with 4.1-inch guns, classed as torpedo-boats. Sixteen, of 1,625 tons, with 5-inch guns, are building.

Submarines.—Two of 750 tons and twenty of 250 tons already built. Six of 500 tons under construction. (It has been stated that eight more may be building).

There are also two modern submarine depot ships and a considerable number of small craft—including gunnery school tenders, fleet escort ships, minesweepers, motor launches for anti-submarine work, and fast motor craft of the coastal motorboat type primarily armed with torpedoes.

TRADITION

The enthusiasm with which the creation of her new navy has been received throughout Germany must be seen to be believed. The naval and sea traditions are zealously fostered, and naval literature and pictures command a ready sale in every bookshop, far more so than in England. Cheap models of men-of-war are obtainable in all toyshops, and in each town are seen members of the naval section of the Hitler youth movement wearing their seamen's uniforms. At a "Sea Sports School" on a lake not far from Berlin leaders for this organisation are put through an intensive course in boatwork, physical exercises, signalling and general elementary seamanship.

The training and discipline are thorough, and the boys are the picture of health and keenness. This particular establishment was named "Gorch Fock," the pen-name of an author who volunteered for the navy during the war and perished in the Weisbaden at Jutland. He is now a popular hero.

EX-SERVICEMEN

The officially-recognised Navy League, too, which has a membership approaching 60,000, with branches all over the country, and consists practically entirely of ex-naval officers and men, fosters the naval tradition in every city and town in Germany. Some 30,000 of its members attended the recent celebrations at Kiel, and in the steamer Roland, which took what was then referred to as the "prominents" to sea for the review of the fleet, officers of every rank in uniform, active and retired, mingled freely with members of the Navy League, wearing their blue serge suits with medals, and uniform peaked caps with golden badges.

There were many touching reunions between officers and men who had not met since the war, while more organised massed meetings took place on shore. With speeches, music, beer, cigars, and quantities of food, they lasted until the small hours of the morning. It was the Navy League that collected the large sum of money for the building of the impressive Naval War Memorial near Kiel, and gave it to the navy and the nation. It is a real power in the land, and the prevalent idea in England that German naval officers remain aloof from their men is anything but true in fact.

BATTLE PICTURES

Naval tradition is fostered in other ways. New ships are provided with battle pictures, and ordered to take over the tradition of war-time squadrons. Besides the conspicuous brass plates bearing the battle honours pertaining to their own names, their gun turrets are labelled with the names of famous ships. The 11-inch turrets of the battleship Admiral Graf Spee, for instance, are named Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, after the two cruisers sunk at the battle of the Falklands.

The seamen, who are volunteers, join for four years, but can serve on for twelve years or longer. Officers of all branches, executive, engineer, paymaster, and medical, pass direct from their schools to seagoing training ships. There they spend a year, generally in foreign cruisers, followed by another twelve months' study at the Naval College at Mürwik, near Flensburg. Except for the small device above the stripes on the coat sleeves, there is now no distinction between the executive officers and those of the other branches who used to be known as "officials."

The entries of officers and men are being increased, while retired officers have been recalled to the service. Other retired officers in the reserve undergo periodical training afloat. Training in the gunnery, torpedo, signal, and other shore schools is proceeding apace, and the ships spend most of their time exercising at sea. Money does not appear to be lacking.

The new German navy may be young, but it is strenuously keen, full of enthusiasm, and very efficient. One most noticeable feature is the real friendliness of all German officers for Britain, and their sincere desire for a close understanding between the two countries.

SHANGHAI WEDDINGS

JORDAN-WILLDER

Shanghai, June 28.

At the Chapel of Christ the King, Miss Kathleen Willder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Willder of Shanghai, was married yesterday at five o'clock, following a ceremony in the morning at the British Consulate, to Mr. Eric Granville Jordan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Jordan of Melbourne. The Reverend Father MacDonald officiated, and the bride was given away by her father. She looked very lovely in a gown of white satin with shirring down the front, a boat-shaped neckline and shirred sleeves laced with pearls. Her train was a long separate piece attached to the waist. She carried a bouquet of Easter lilies, with which the church also was decorated.

Mrs. Winifred Lester, who came from England to attend the wedding, was matron of honour. She wore floral georgette in blue and green with a coat, and a blue hat. Her bouquet was of cream roses. The bridesmaids, the Misses Millicent Mason, Nora Hunter, Joe Whaley and Beatrice Warrington, wore like flowers in their pastel organdie picture frocks in pink, blue, green and lavender, with frills. They wore halos of organdie and carried cream roses. Miss Norma Proud, the flower girl, wore white embroidered net over blue satin, with a frilled hemline and puffed sleeves. Her Dutch cap was of lace; she carried a blue and white basket of rose petals. Bobbie Warrington, page boy, was in white with long trousers. The bride's mother, in a yellow lace afternoon gown with a large picture hat to match, carried pink carnations. Ushers were Messrs. Jack Hourihan and Frank Moss.

A reception in honour of the couple was held after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Warrington, of 419 Yu Yuen Road. The bride's travelling costume was a white crepe two-piece ensemble with a ruffled organdie blouse, a small white hat and a veil, and accessories to match. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Jordan departed for Japan, where they will spend their honeymoon.

FROST-ANDERSON

Miss Phyllis Mary Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Anderson, was married yesterday to Leon Henry George Frost, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Frost and the late Mr. Henry John William Frost. The civil ceremony at the British Consulate was held at eleven in the morning, and the church ceremony was at Holy Trinity Cathedral at 3.30 p.m. Mr. J. W. O. Davidson and the Reverend E. J. Ottenwell officiating. Dr. J. Elliott Murray gave the bride away. The bridesmaid was Miss A. R. Gibson, the best man was Mr. Herbert E. Heinzelmann, and the ushers were Messrs. Ernest W. Clements and Mr. Rahlin A. Warren.

The bride's dress was of white georgette over crepe satin with a fine net veil and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore pale daffodil georgette with a halo hat to match, trimmed with flower petals. The mother of the bridegroom was in mauve georgette with purple accessories.

Mrs. Frost's going-away costume was a white dress and cape, trimmed with blue. The reception after the wedding was held at the Masonic Hall in Avenue Road. Afterwards the bride and groom left for their honeymoon in Japan. —(N.C.D.N.)

Germany Acts Fast To Make First Bid For North Atlantic Air Service

(By M. K. WHITELEATHER).

Berlin (By Mail).—Germany is moving fast to make the first bid for a regular North Atlantic airplane service.

Trial flights to Charleston, S. C., via the Azores and Bermuda are scheduled for late summer. The airplane service will parallel that of the luxury airliner "Hindenburg," which brings the old and new worlds within two and a half days of each other.

Germany's two air lines, officials say, are not to be run as competitors, but are to supplement each other.

Both the airship and airplane services will be merely extensions of German lines now in operation between Germany and South America.

The airplane line will make a stop at a catapult ship midway between the Azores and Bermuda. That will make three stops between Frankfurt-on-Main and Charleston.

At some of these halts, cargo will be trans-shipped to fresh planes. From Charleston to points within the United States cargo will be handled by American air lines.

The German Luft-Hansa has made agreements with the Pan-American Airways for cooperation in any services which may be organized by either company between Germany and the United States.

German experts say that flying conditions are best between the twentieth and fortieth latitude parallels. That is why they favour the Azores-Bermuda route.

They also believe that the ocean passage is possible only by using catapult station ships. Long non-stop flights, they say, are not yet safe enough for regular commercial routes.

GOLD CUP DAY

American Challenge Staved Off

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 28.

The American challenge for the Gold Cup at Ascot yesterday was beaten off by a short head. In a great finish to a fine race the four-year-old filly Quashed, owned by Lady Barbara Smith and leased by her to Lord Stanley, was in front at the winning-post by just that margin from Omaha, the colt which had been entered by Mr. William Woodward with a hope that a famous trophy might be taken to the United States. As pokbul, bred in France and owned by Baron Edouard de Rothschild, was third, the placing provided an international group.

The victory of Quashed, a triumph of gameness, was welcomed with resounding enthusiasm. The issue in the last two furlongs was between England and America, and there were moments when it seemed that Omaha must win. Down the course the numbers had to go into the frame before there could be certainty that Quashed had kept the cup at home, and then the cheers in the Royal Enclosure echoed along the stands and lawns. When the horses came into the unsaddling enclosure there was generous recognition of a gallant loser as well as a renewal of acclamation for the winner.

PREPARED FOR RAIN

Gold Cup Day at Ascot, more than Tuesday, Wednesday, or Friday, seems to demand the prelude of Royal pageantry, but even if the King could have attended the meeting this year, there could have been no carriage procession up the course. Racegoers travelled through sullen and persistent rain to the Heath, and it was not until the race for the Ribblesdale Stakes was being run that the sun got the better of the thundery showers.

The weather then improved rapidly, but the atmosphere during the afternoon was that of a hot-house at Kew Gardens. Moisture sucked back into the air from the ground by the sun reduced visibility, and the steamy warmth was a trial to thousands who had come prepared for a wet day.

THE KING'S CORONATION
JEWELS ARE WORTH
£5,000,000HOW THE
CROWNING IS PERFORMED

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 23.

Regalia worth at least £5,000,000 will be used at the coronation of King Edward VIII next May.

It is, of course, impossible to estimate its exact value, but the Rev. William C. Tuting, D.D., in a booklet published to-day on "King Edward the Eighth—Why and How He Will Be Crowned" states that £5,000,000 would probably not buy it.

Moments of high drama in the Coronation ceremony are described by Mr. Tuting. One will be the presentation of the King to the assembled people in Westminster Abbey.

The King will drive in full state to the Abbey. Having been met at the West door by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Abbey choir, he will walk inside in a procession of Bishops—carrying the Bible, pater and chalice—and high officers of State and peers bearing the Regalia.

As his Majesty appears from under the organ screen, boys of Westminster School will greet him with the words, "May King Edward Live"—a privilege accorded to them because of the close association between the school and the Abbey from ancient times. Near the altar will be a platform of wood called "the Theatre," to which the King will go. At each of the four corners of this Theatre he will be presented facing the people, by the Archbishop.

Four times the Archbishop's question will ring out—"Are you willing to do your homage?" And four times this answer will be given, "God Save King Edward," followed by the sounding of trumpets.

The great climax of the whole ceremony is, of course, the Crowning, but many significant rites precede that. After the presentation, the King, with head uncovered and hand on Bible, "makes his solemn oath in the presence of all the people."

Three questions are put to him by the Archbishop, and having answered, the King says, "The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me, God." He then kisses the book and signs the oath.

The Archbishop then says, "The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me, God." He then kisses the book and signs the oath.

Next comes the anointing. The King, his crimson robe and cap of State removed, sits in the ancient King Edward's chair and is anointed by the Archbishop with oil in the form of a cross on his head, breast and palms of both hands, and then, kneeling, is blessed.

Various pieces of the Regalia are now presented to the King, including golden spurs and a sword. Next a royal robe ornamented with golden eagles is placed upon him, and a golden orb surmounted by a cross placed in his right hand.

Then the "wedding ring of England"—a ring of pure gold—is put on the fourth finger of his right hand, and two sceptres, the royal and the ivory, are presented to him.

At the actual crowning the King sits in King Edward's chair with the Stone of Scone beneath it. When the Archbishop, with much ceremonial, places the crown upon the King's head, the cry rings out, loudly and repeatedly, "God save the King," the peers put on their coronets, the trumpets sound, and the great guns at the Tower of London are fired in salute.

A Bible is then presented to his Majesty—"the most valuable thing that this world affords."

The last ceremony will be the paying of homage to the King by the Archbishops and Bishops, Princes of the Blood Royal, and the other peers of the realm.

They will kneel before him, speak words of homage, touch his crown and kiss his cheek.

The Archbishop of Canterbury acts for the Bishop, the Princes do their homage one by one, and the first of the five orders of other peers act on behalf of the rest.

The communion service, begun at the commencement of the ceremony, is then resumed, the King receiving the consecrated bread.

The Archbishop then says, "The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me, God." He then kisses the book and signs the oath.
